This meal smells delicious - I do declare I detect a hint of garlic - but surely possession of that most marvelous substance is a punishable offence here, is it not?

PRIME MINISTER

Well, Mr Ambassador, it does smell rather good! Whilst of course one couldn't possibly admit to using ingredients of potential European origin in this day and age, one must say that one is aware of stories of contraband being smuggled between Europe and England in some quantity.

FA - ~~Yes~~ Yes indeed - it has been noted in Europe also that the Channel Tunnel has had a useful (if subversive) purpose after all. INTRODUCTION

The year is 2066, thunder clouds gather over Britain, as once more she finds herself isolated against the vast United States of Europe. Following Britains withdrawal from Europe in the late 1990's, 60 years of isolation has torn a great rift between Britain and Europe far greater than the 25 sea miles that divide them. It was Euro's banning of english lamb and then the British banning Euro's wine, followed by a Euro ban on British day trippers

This led to the British removing from circulation all the hard equ, melting them down to make souvenir models of Big Ben and the complete ban on all Euro goods and foods by the British Government which led to this total breakdown.

The ~~late 20th Century~~ symbol of European unity, the Channel Tunnel, through which ~~once~~ travelled the hopes and aspirations of European unity now lies derelict and forgotten.

Background of the
Following the Isle of Wight missile crisis in 2066 Britain set up a 35 mile total exclusion zone; effectively sealing off Britain which now finds itself deprived of its place on the world stage, barely standing firm as the sun sets on this sceptred Isle. But even in this, its darkest hour, Britain still finds time to celebrate the completion and opening of what is considered to be the 17th wonder of the world - Yes!! man has walked on Mars, swam the depths of the ocean, played basket ball on the highest peak, but now you can get from Kings Cross to the Folkestone Riviera in a record breaking time - $14\frac{1}{2}$ hours via the ~~Cross~~ HIGH SPEED ~~Chunnel~~ now known as the Kings Cross Folkestone Riviera Seaside Special Link link.

- Look out here comes the boss!

- What's all this talking on duty? Come on, smarten up, let's get this tunnel looking smart.

- What's it for?

- What's what for?

- The tunnel!

- Never you mind that laddy, if they wanted you to know what the tunnel was for they'd put a big sign in neon lights with pictures underneath so that idiots like you could understand what the words meant - see? So nevermind and get it smartened up. We might have some very important people visiting today. Are you OK?

- Yes I'm just coming BOSS DISAPPEARS

- (Sniffs air) Is that you?

- What do you mean?

- (sniffs air) Well that smell?

- What smell?

- That strange smell - it's coming from the tunnel. It often comes...when we get a Southerly wind.

- SG2 - You fool...it is only half past three...do you not use GMT in Europe.
- PIERRE - Oh shut up! Have you brought the merchandise?
- SG2 - Have you brought yours?
- PIERRE - Of course I've brought mine. Do you think I would walk 20 miles for nothing? How many have you got?
- SG2 - Well it's not easy.
- PIERRE - How many?
- SG2 - I have to smuggle them and the risks.
- PIERRE - How many?
- SG2 - Listen it's the bulge...it shows through.
- PIERRE - How many?
- SG2 - Five.
- PIERRE - Five? The agreement was eight. What possible use is an odd number? Show me (Pause - SG2 gives an ouch of pain) Oh but they are so fine. What wonderful objects.
- SG2 - What have you brought for me?
- PIERRE - I have 8 clusters, but you only brought 5 of yours...so I'll only give you 5 of mine.
- SG2 - But the quality...mine where so good.
- PIERRE - OK...I'll give you 6 and send a pigeon when the next batch is complete.
